

What is FASD?

Foetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder is the most common, non-genetic cause of learning disability and a lifelong neurodevelopmental condition. Research suggests that FASD affects 1.8% of children in the UK, almost twice as many as autism.

Who are we?

FASD Friends is a support group initially set up by two adoptive families who have experience of children affected by FASD.

We provide...

- Free monthly meetings with refreshments & children welcome
- Safe supportive place to share our experiences
- Signposting to support & resources.

"Now I know it's not just me – I feel comfortable enough to be able to talk openly about the challenges we face and find out about strategies other carers use."

"A safe space to talk about a condition which isn't often understood."
